

CHIEF, MEDICAL SERVICE CORPS

June 18, 2019

Medical Service Corps Officers,

I am truly honored to lead this remarkable team and serve as the 19th Chief of the Medical Service Corps. Throughout our history, we have successfully adapted to complex and challenging environments as members of a Joint Force – readiness of our warfighters and their health care needs is our #1 priority.

It is my responsibility to ensure the Medical Service Corps remains ready to support warfighting readiness in an increasingly complex global security setting by providing highly trained, competent, combat-ready officers. We will continue developing leaders who will guide our organizations to success in the current operational environment.

The strategic atmosphere demands that we remain postured to support the warfighter in an ever more lethal and disruptive battlefield, across multiple domains. Our Medical Service Corps Officers will lead the Army Medical Department by maintaining a culture of innovation and best practices that integrate new capabilities and adapt warfighting approaches to achieve mission success.

The Medical Service Corps will support the movement towards an integrated medical system that enhances readiness and health. We will adapt to the transformation requirements occurring across the Military Health System.

I am humbled by the courage, dedication, and selfless service of those who preceded us and those of you who remain in service to our Corps. Thank you for your service, and I am honored and proud to serve with you.

Sincerely,

Dennis P. LeMaster

Major General, U.S. Army

19th Chief of the Medical Service Corps
